Those preparing an honors thesis will enroll in this course for three consecutive terms in their senior year. They will work on a research project under the direction of a member of the history faculty and will produce an honors thesis.

499. Proseminar

Fall, Winter, Spring, Summer. 4(4-0) Senior history majors or approval of department.

Designed to involve the history major and other advanced students with a special interest in history in a writing project which will acquaint him with problems of historical research and synthesis while deepening his knowledge of a particular area of history. Within the area defined by the instructor, each student will select a research topic and will be expected to produce a written report of his work. During the preparation of this report, the student will be introduced to the nature of the historical method and to major problems involved in historical interpretation.

Graduate courses are of two types: reading courses and seminars. The former entail wide reading on selected topics and written and oral reports. The latter emphasize original research and the writing of research papers. The content of both reading courses and seminars in a given field may change from term to term, thus making possible a rich and varied offering in history for the graduate student. Students may enroll in a course for more than one term or in more than one section of a course during the same term, provided that duplication of content does not result. Sheets giving detailed information concerning all graduate courses to be offered during a particular term are available in the History office during the preceding term. Students desiring to enroll in these courses must have the permission of the department.
