The semester system divides an academic year into two regular semesters. Generally, each semester is approximately 15 weeks in duration, while a summer session which is not a compulsory course is about eight weeks and has study hours equal to those of a regular semester.

- (1) A course with at least 15 hours/semester of lecture hours or debate hours has a value of one credit.
- (2) A course with at least 30 hours/semester of laboratory has a value of one credit.
- (3) A course with at least 45 hours/semester of practicum or field work has a value of one credit.
- (4) A thesis or independent study with at least 45 hours/semester of study period has a value of one credit.
