Articulation Agreement between

Michigan State University

and

Lansing Community College

In April, 1994, Michigan State University and Lansing Community College entered into an articulation agreement "to work together to increase access to higher education for adults." The first phase of that agreement was "to collaborate in the offering of an evening bachelor's degree completion program," through articulation of requirements and student advising such that students may begin their studies at LCC, then complete upper division requirements at MSU.

The first major in the Evening Program covered by this agreement was in Interdisciplinary Studies in Social Science (IDS), a major in IDS: Human Resources and Society, administered by the Center for Integrative Studies, College of Social Science. At this time the original agreement is extended to include three other MSU majors at the bachelor's level:

IDS: Public Policy Studies, also administered by the Center for Integrative Studies,
College of Social Science

General Business Administration, administered by Undergraduate Programs,
The Eli Broad College of Business

Engineering Arts, administered by the Department of Materials Science and Mechanics, College of Engineering

The understandings of the original articulation agreement concerning requirements, admission, advising, program planning and administrative responsibility remain valid for all four majors in the Evening Program.

We, the undersigned, pledge our continued support, commitment and best efforts to implement this and the original agreement, effective as of the date, May 15, 1995.
